Tortured by KGB: S. Africa dissident

Washington (AP)—Nokonono Delphine Kave, 27, a former member of a black South African insurgent group, the African National Congress, told a Senate judiciary subcommittee yesterday she was tortured and sexually abused by Soviet authorities who accused her of being a reactionary.

Kave testified that in 1978, while studying at a language center in the Soviet Union, she was sent to a psychiatric hospital for "reeducation. I learned at this psychiatric hospital that the 'doctors' who were questioning, torturing and sexually abusing me" were agents of the KGB, the Soviet secret police. She said she fled to the United States last year.
